Webster, N. Y., May 2-When Contrad Gleiser of West Webster took a second wife before the grass had time to grow over the grave of his dirst wife his ne-phors of West Webster exchanged significant slances. They were also portentous glances. They disapproved of what seemed to be unseemly haste, and what better way to express their disapproval than by organizing an old-fashiones charivari party? The suggestion seemed to meet with the approval of every resident, except dielser himself, and he wasn't consulted.

Accordingly a crowd of men and boys foregathered in the vicinity of the bridegroom when and with the pans, guns and horns, proceeded to make night-blacous. By an unwritten law, if the bridegroom treats on such occasion the seremaders withdraw beyond earshot of the 'happy couple' and divide the spoils.

But Gleiser didn't feet that he could afford to treat. He had had illness in his family very recently, followed by death, and the funeral expenses of his first wife were heavy.

Then there were the expenses of his sec-

So he didn't "come out." The whole town then became interested, and the musicians determined to make Gleiser treat, or know the reason why, so an effigy was prepared, hung on a pole in front of Gleiser's house and burned.

MADE A GUN PLAY.

Constable Fred Woodworth lives near Gleiser, and his wife being ill, the serenaders desisted one night, but sent Gleiser a letter warning him that they were coming the next night.

The darkness had hardly fallen the succeeding night when the people might have been seen skulking toward Gleiser's house, armed with every conceivable instrument capable of making a noise. There were about a dozen shotguns, three lummense circular saws, pans, bells and horns, of all descriptions.

about a dozen shotguns, three immense circular saws, pans, bells and horns, of all descriptions.

The noise made by this combination was heard for miles and people came flocking in from the surrounding country. An immense crowd was soon on hand, but Gleiser failed to be brought out. At a late hour the serenaders desisted and dispersed, after agreeing to come the next night.

This was Wednesday night, and Gleiser concluded to take a hand in the "doin's" The serenaders had made extensive preparations; messengers had been sent to East Webster and returned laden with all the rosin the town had in stock, about seventy-five pounds.

When darkness fell they began to assemble in front of Gleiser's house, but before a blow was struck Gleiser stepped from behind a tree, where he had concealed himself, and, flourishing a revolver in his hand, charged the crowd. The serenaders had not reckoned on this, and the effect was disastrous. At the sight of the gun they turned to a man and fled.

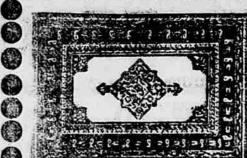

Gleiser was mad with rage, and overtaking a youth named Julius Ewail he dealt him a furious blow on the back of his bead with his revolver. Ewail dropped as if shot, and Gleiser continued on up the street after the retreating screnaders.

A short distance up the path he met Frank Soudaan. Frank was going to the horning, and did not know the latest developments, but he was informed rudely, when Gleiser appeared is front of him and shoved and served with the served was the fact of the horning, and he had he hand so the serves, and he put his gun in his pocket and went home.

When he had sufficiently recovered he swore out a warrant for Gleiser, and Constable Fred Woodworth went to serve it. He went to Gleiser's house and rapped. Gleiser demanded who was there. Woodworth told him he had a warrant for him and demanded his surrender.

Gleiser opened the door a few inches and shoved a revolver into Woodworth's face and said he would not be taken.

The officer tried to take him off his goard, but Gleiser kept him covered, and the officer had to go away without his man. This coupled with the knowledge of Ewall's injuries, made the crowd mad, and for a time things looked soually for Gleiser, But cooler counsel prevailed and nothing came of it until the following day, when Gleiser surrendered and was brought before Justice Stewart.

Lawyer Representing Men Whom John Wolff Is Alleged to Have Defrauded Says He Has Witnes ses to Prove That Defaulter Is a Fugitive in Wilds of the Dawson Region.

Scattle. The remains of a man which had come into the morgue as the result of self-destruction were identified as those of John Wolff. He left behind him several large policies in the Nord Deutscher Verein and other German benevolent societies, which together with his real and personal property, comprise the estate of which Mrs. Wolff is now trying to become executrix.

But the bondsmen who were made to pay for the disappearance of the man for whom they had pledged themselves as sureties now intend to contest the case on the ground that a fraud is being practiced, that the man who cost them so dearly is still alive, and therefore the will is invalidated. Attoriey Oalman would not divuge the source of his information that Wolff was seek by the Dawson districtantes the time when he was supposed to have committed suicide in Seattle. We will bring witnesses into court to prove our assertions. Beyond that I will not say further.

Charles Naşle, the attorney for Mrs. Wolff, hints at something behind the disappearance of Wolff which will not sound pleasant to his former associates in business when it is brought up in court, as he promised that it surely will. He said his night:

"I have proof that Wolff was practically freed out of the firm, of which he was supposed to the stock of the stock."

"I have proof that Wolff was practically frozen out of the firm, of which he was president, by a combination of the stock-holders acting against him. When he disappeared the firm was reorganized under the name of Wreden, Kohlmoos & Co., and all of Wolff's shares in the business were absorbed on the pretext of his failure to pay assessments. I made a demand on behalf of my client for the shares which had belonged to Wolff. I will bring the firm's books into court to prove that crooked work has been done."

New York, May 2.-Anxious to form a strong union in this city, the Stationary strong union in this city, the Stationary Engineers' and Firemen's Association has issued an appeal, which says:

"We call on all unselfish men to come together and raise themselves above the status of the common laborer. At present there is not an organization worthy of the fame, except the Stationary Engineers and Firemen, which have not bettered the conditions under which their members formerly worked. Then let us throw aside our prejudices and stand as men, side by side, as determined not to be classed any longer below the common laborer, as at present we are.

INFLAMMATION OF THE BLADDER

A Prominent Citizen of New Orleans Who Suffered for Years With Inflammation of the Bladder Was Entirely Cured by

Warner's Safe Cure,

The Only Absolute Cure for All Diseases of the Kidney, Liver, Bladder and Blood.

"It affords me the greatest pleasure to testify to the merits of Warner's Safe Cure, as I consider it was the sole means of restoring me to health. I suffered for nearly three years with inflammation of the bladder, causing me severe pains, also the most terrible headaches, and at times I was unable to attend to my regular duties. I doctored without receiving any benefit. A club friend advised me to try Warner's Safe Cure. It seemed as if there was not a sound organ in my body when I began using it, but I gradually improved and felt much encouraged. It took seven months to fully restore me to health, but during that: time I used no medicine but Safe Cure, and therefore know that I owe my recovery and good health of to-day entirely to it.

If you have pains in the back, rheumatism, uric-acid poison, rheumatic gout, dis-betes, Bright's lisease, inflammation of the bladder and urinary organs, scalding pains when you urinate, eczema, jaundice, swelling or torpid liver; if a woman, bearing-down sensation, fainting spells, so-called female yeakness, painful periods, your kidneys have been diseased for a long time. You should lose no time—get a 50c bottle of Safe Cure at your druggist's. It will relieve you at once and effect a permanent cure. It kills all
